Investment Pays Off for Ardencote

The Warwickshire four-star venue received Large Hotel of the Year at the prestigious Heart of England Excellence in Tourism Awards. Hosted by BBC presenters Nick Owen and Suzanne Virdee, the awards celebrated the very best in tourism from Birmingham, The Black Country, Staffordshire, Coventry and Warwickshire, Worcestershire, Shropshire and Herefordshire.

Ardencote also picked up Best Business at the Coventry and Warwickshire Godivas, which recognize creativity, flair, ingenuity and commitment. While further wins include Spa Newcomer of the Year and Most Family Friendly Business at the Pevonia Botanica and Best of Warwick awards. Ardencote has even been nominated for Most Excellent Hotel Meeting Venue at the Conde Nast Johansens.

The hotel, country club & spa now boasts a total of 110 en-suite bedrooms, nine state of the art conference rooms, eight dedicated syndicate rooms and three gymnasias.

Commenting on the recent successes, marketing manager, Maja Foster remarked: 'When we started this was an 18-bedroom hotel and now it has 110 rooms and a host of luxurious facilities, which we continue to improve. We are absolutely delighted to have scooped these awards and we are full of praise for all the staff who have worked so hard to make Ardencote Manor the place it now is.'

Ardencote Manor is celebrating a plethora of awards wins following a major extension.
